" KEEP SMILING!"

The "keep smiling" philosophy is one of considerable value in life. In many case, the ability to "keep smiling" is a pression puts the case: "Two men looking through iron bars; one sees the mud the other the stars." But at the same time it is not easy for anyone—even if they are naturally of happy disposition—to look on the cheery side of things—then any of the disagreeable symptoms of dyspepsia make their appearance. Indigestion will affect the outlook of the brightest individual. To "keep smiling" during a severe bilious attack will be a matter of real difficulty to the majority of people. Thanks to

of people. Thanks to BEECHAM'S PILLS

bowever, no one need suffer long from such troubles. Many people, indeed, need not suffer at all, if they would only keep this excellent remedy by them ready to take at the earliest signs of a disordered stomach Beccham's Pills have proved beyond dispute that indigestion can be quickly relieved and ultimately cared. If you suffer in any way from this health-destroving ailment take Beecham's Pills, and see how they

WILL HELP YOU.

Socialist Minister of Munitions in the late Cabinet. M. Thomas said that the Socialbut that the proposed Cabinet represented merely a reshuffling of the old cards. The Socialists were tired of the nicely balanced were again—and this time finally—upset.

M. Painlevé, who, as the late Minister of War, had been M. Ribot's ablest colleague, declared that no Cabinet could hope to live without Socialist support, and the man first, the consumer next, and the producer last. Mr. Anderson shows that the application of this principle to the case of the Irish butter industry promises the most serious consequences, which will his reconstruction was a case of plus can have been unfailing attractions, the whole, to the stiffening of the Socialists of demands as they came to realise that their support was indispensable to the Government. M. Painlevé offered them substantial representation in the Ministry; it is probable that they calculate that, if they choose to prolong the crisis, they may get a still more substantial offer from the next Cabinet-maker. Already M. Painlevé seems to have accepted a rather dubious innovation at their hands. Hitherto no Socialists could become a Minister without the amount of the same cannot be said without qualification of Sweden. Last year Norway stood up bravely to Germany in face of a threatened disaster to the said is of less than 7 lb. 8 ld. where the sale is of 7 lbs. or more, but intensely pro-Ally, while the same cannot be said without qualification of Sweden. Last year Norway stood up bravely to Germany in face of a threatened disaster to the air traditions, whether held in the open or under cover. It is interesting to reconsider their traditional features in the light of our new and terrible experience of the "real thing." A few years ago, for instance, many in face of a threatened disaster to have accompleted them substantial offer from the obsolete; and those who declaimed in this desired to the counter shall not exceed by the disciplination of the counter shall not ever the sale is of 7 lbs. or more, but the said stack, 2s. 8d. per alons the said without qualification of Sweden. Where the sale is of 7 lbs. or nore, but the said whether he Socialist could become a Minister without the approval of the Socialist group. Now the "group" has decided that, before it drill is now as important as the ordinary permits any of its members to become a musketry course. Presumably, bayonet Minister, the Premier must discuss questions of policy with its delegates, and that the "group" shall act as a committee of control over its own members in the Cabinet. It is obvious that, if this arrangeinnovation that no student of war could ment is accepted by the next Government, have foreseen ten years ago. Mr. Anderson found himself the only re-presentative of the producers present at a series of meetings of interested parties ( and he brought away the impression that, Socialists were tired of the nicely balanced grouping of interests; they wanted a strong Cabinet, with a strong national policy, and M. Ribot's arrangement would not give it to them. Accordingly, the Socialists withdrew; but M. Ribot, apparently not much perturbed, proceeded to reconstruct his reconstruction. Immediately afterwards, however, his plans were again—and this time finally—upset.

Painlevé had formed his Cabinet—which now contained, in addition to M. Ribot as Foreign Minister, a strong Socialist element—when M. Thomas declared bluntly that the Socialists would refuse to work with M. Ribot. He retired to consult the Socialists would refuse to work with M. Ribot. He retired to consult the Socialist leaders, who supported him, and M. Painlevé accepted the ultimatum. He informed the President of his failure to construct a Ministry. It was announced at a late hour last inglit that M. Painlevé accepted the ultimatum, and a possible will mean a work of the same and the construct a Ministry. It was announced at a late hour last inglit that M. Poincaré has invited him to make another attempt. There can be no doubt that M. Painlevé was right in seeking to bring new blood and a more vigorous policy into the Cabinet. French Labour has a legitimate grievance in its under-representation in the Ministry, and M. Painlevé's proposed Cabinet would not have made the Government more Socialist than the British Government is at the present time. It is easy to understand M. Ribot's failure, for his reconstruction was a case of plus of the food Control Committee for Irola work of the food Cont began, and again everything seemed to be ing with the agricultural economy of going smoothly. In fact, M. Painlevé had mixed farming in Ireland, and it is only

If they succeed in excluding him from the making him the President's Jonah. If they succeed in excluding him from the next Government, they will feel that they have punished him for his refusal to issue passports for the Conference at Stockholm.

This rather confusing story of political intrigue and personal animosity is not pleasant reading for the friends of France; but her enemies will deceive themselves greatly if they allow it to give them any military encouragement. As well might the Germans hope that, because English Labour has its political grievances and its desire—in theory—for international peace conferences, it has relaxed its purpose to win the war at any cost. France, like England, has her muddle-brained anarchists and her faint-hearted "pacificists," but there, as in England, the heart of Labour is absolutely sound, and its sterner game of war. Wrestling on horseback promised to be more than a sport in the sterner game of war. Wrestling on horseback promised to be more than a sport in the initial stages of the great war, after the init making him the President's Jonah. If sterner game of war. Wrestling on horseback

SAMUELS, K.C. keeping France without a Government at this critical time; we need not question the loyalty of French Socialism, as a whole, not only to the Republic, but to the Allied cause. M. Renaudel, the Socialist leader, has formulated a policy for his party which no friend of honest and efficient government in France could hope to improve. He puts in its forefront the wigorous conduct of the war, and in the next place the purification of internal government. He demands honesty in the national services and the punishment of individual crime. Referring to the sinister relations of certain public men with disreputable adventurers, he says—with that neatness of phrase which comes naturally to all Frenchmen, Socialist or Royalist—that "these individuals of the underworld must be removed from the country's path." It must be admitted that M. Renaudel's statement of policy conveys a just criticism of the defects of recent Administrations, and of the causes of the downfall of M. Ribot's Ministry. We shall not pretend to believe that French Socialism will be able to live up to these high ideals; but we are confident that it influence in the next Government will not impair the conduct of the war or weaken the nation's will to victory.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

Sir Auckland Geddes, the Minister of National Service, is credited with some far-reaching ideas concerning National Service, and it is hinted that his proposals will affect every man not at present on service with the forces. This statement, however, should be taken with the proverbial grain of salt, but it seems certain that important changes are contemplated. The Department is now being moved to the premises of the Hotel Windsor in Victhe premises of the Hotel Windsor in Vic-toria street, a smaller building than St. Ermin's Hotel, but one that will have to contain a larger staff. #### GERMAN SUBMARINE DISAPPOINTMENT.

Professor Max Weber, of the University of Heidelberg, says The Times, whose articles on German affairs recently caused the suspension of the Frankfurter Zeitung, now contributes to that journal an article called "The Lessons of the German Chancellor Crisis." Professor Weber says that the crisis was due to three Weber says that the crisis was due to three causes:—(I.) Dissatisfaction at the continued respect paid by the Government to the Pan-German demagogy, and a firm desire that, before entering upon the fourth year of war, the sincerity of the foreign peace formula should be put to an indisputably honest test.

(2.) Dissatisfaction at the delay in domestic reconstruction, and especially Prussian Franchise Reform. (3.) Finally, vent was given to the dissatisfaction about the expectation that the submarine war would already have forced England to "capitulation." This expectation was never nourished by the leaders of our naval forces, but, in spite of all warnings of the inevitable reaction, "Including one sum! about the success to be expected was actually produced. The Cologne Gazette production, in this column, of Professor Door-mann's disclosures, showing that the German military authorities, when pressed in the Reichs-tag Committee, could not hold out hope of an improvement in the military situation if the war were continued. MINISTERIAL POSITION.

The Retch states that M. Miliukoff and General Alexeieff, former Commander-in-Chief, called on M. Kerensky, and offered their mediation in order to avert the civil war which is beginning. M. Kerensky, however, considered it impossible to negotiate with persons who had violated the law, but declared that he would not be opposed to handing over the Government to a new Cabinet, which sould enter into negotiations with General Korniloff. After a private conference between M. Kerensky and the Ministers who have resigned, it was declared that this plan was the surest way to bring the internal troublee to an end, and accordingly General Alexeieff was selected as the eventual head of the new Cabinet. However, in spite of the remonstrances of the Cadet Ministers, M. Kerensky finally abandoned the idea of entrusting the Government to General Alexeieff, and opened negotiations with representatives of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates. It is thought that the Socialist elements will be more largely representatives of the more largely representatives will be more largely representatives will be more largely representatives will be more largely representatives of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates.

In the interests of the national defence their command in the military operations has not been taken away from them, but they have been placed under the strict control of the Military Committees. The Baltic Fleet has categorically declared itself wholly for the Government. The troops of Korniloff, several of which were drawn into the movement unwittingly, have stayed their progress, and become disunited. Some of the Commanders of these columns have arrived at Petrograd to demand authorisation to arrest their leaders, who had betrayed the Government. The latter is continuing its energetic measures for the defence of Petrograd against every attack, and it is to be hoped the shedding of blood will be avoided. The news which is flowing in from the Provinces indicates everywhere a spirit of loyalty and absolute fidelity to the Provisional Government.

The I.A.O.S. has incessantly fought for fair treatment for Irish creamery butter, which it has never received. The reason why English and Scottish farmers do not make butter is because it pays them far better to sell their milk, or to make cheese. The Irish farmer has made butter to the pays them for the pays the pay cause it pays them far better to sell their milk, or to make cheese. The Irish farmer has made butter from time immemorial, not because it is a very profitable industry in itself, but because butter-making fits in better than either milk-selling or cheese-making with live stock rearing, pig and poultry feeding, and, indeed, the whole economy of the Irish agricultural industry. Moreover, in Ireland there are no such large centres of milk consumption as there are in the United Kingdom, and Irish farmers have never made cheese, and want separated milk rather than whey for their young stock. Indeed, it could not have been carried on at all in the past, were it not for the unpaid labour of the farmer's family. To bring butter to a parity with milk or with cheese, its price would have to be raised to 280s. per cwt., or 2s. 6d. per lb. The farmers are not asking for their full pound of fiesh, but they claim that they ought to be paid a reasonable price for butter if the public want them to continue to make butter. They ask, not 280s. per cwt., but 230s.—surely not a very extravagant demand, in view of the fact that, even at this price, at this season of the year, it will not return the Irish farmer more than 8id. per gallon for his milk. But the Ministry of Food have refused to fix the price at 230s. and have kept it at 200s., while Danish butter is selling freely at 300s. and upwards. What inducement does 200s. offer to the Irish butter-maker? None. He sees that the price fixed for milk in England for the present month is just double what he can get from butter-making, so he will send his milk to England, if he can. This will mean the ceasation of the creamery industry during the winter months—a very tender plant, which was only beginning to grow with the aid of much fostering—and very serious damage to the Irish butter industry generally.

But, if milk is sent out of Ireland in any considerable quantity, it will result in even a

In view of the gravity of this question in relation to public health, I have had some further conversation with Sir Henry Ribbinson, of the J said Government Board, and with the Executive of the Food Control Committee. Sir Henry will be glad so far as his powers go, to facilitate any action the local authorities have authority to take, and I understand that the Food Control Committee is making enquiries as to the facts which are supposed to warrant the existing prices. When these have been ascertained, and I hope at a very early date, I hope to be in a position to discuss with you the propriety, and if the facts warrant it, the controller. does not seem to be obtainable under 2s. 8d. or 2s. 10d. per lb.? It is absurd to maintain that 8d. or 10d. per lb. is not altogether a monstrous charge, say, between Mincing lane and Banagher. Why are the public not able to obtain "controlled" tea at every grocer's shop? What is the use of "controlling" it—almost ruining us producers—if the public get no benefit? I was growing tea in India for over thirty years, and was in Mincing lane, in the heart of tea, for three or four years before. I believe that some sort of "Food Control" has been set un for Ireland, and, so far as tea is concerned, I will gladly help. The public should insist on obtaining excellent tea at 2s. 4d. to 2s. 6d. per lb.—Yours, etc.

EXTENSION OF DAYLIGHT SAVING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR.—Is it too late to hope that the authorities will extend Summer Time to the end of this month? In view of the sudden and tremendous increase in the price of all fluminants, it is scarcely good sense to return to "Winter Time" on 17th inst., as at present arranged. Germany has already, I believe, decided to extend the time. We must not give the enemy even this advantage. I mention nothing of the health aspect and the work that has yet to be done in the gardens and allotments.—Yours, etc.,

LOANS FOR REBUILDING.

both as regards time and extent, to the bounds of his interest.

TERMS OF BORROWING.

what it will cost them, but there must be quite a number of cases in which it will be well worth a business man's while to put himself into a position to resume his business at the earliest possible moment. The section of the Act has been drafted with very close regard for the interests of those who will benefit by its provisions.

First, as to those who are entitled to avail themselves of these provisions. Although ownership is mentioned in the first instance, where a person desirous of obtaining an advance is not in a position to secure repayment owing to defective title or insufficiency of interest in the site or value of that interest, and the other persons whose concurrence is necessary in order to remedy or remove the defect are unable or unwilling to concur in securing the advance, he may apply to the MARKET ACTIVE. necessary in order to remedy or remove the defect are unable or unwilling to concur in securing the advance, he may apply to the Land Judge for an order charging the ownership of the site and any interest therein with the repayment of the advance and interest. If, after giving all persons interested an opportunity of being heard, it appears to him that the advance would enure to the benefit of the other interests, the Land Judge may apportion the advance, interest, and instalments as between the several interests charged in proportion to the benefit accruing from the advance to the owners of those interests respectively. He may declare that the principal, interest, and instalments shall in the first instance be paid by, and recoverable from, the owners for the time being of any interest which he may specify, and provide for contribution and adjustment of rights and liabilities as between the several interests charged. These provisions preserve the privileges of the small man who has but a little interest or a short tenancy, and prevent him being deprived of the benefit of the section by unwillingness to act on the part of his lessors. They also limit his liability, both as regards time and extent, to the benefit of his interest.

money, turning out a tenant without compensation.

In order to prevent discrimination on unreasonable grounds, it is provided that an application for an advance in accordance with the provisions of the section shall not be refused except where, and so far as, the Corporation cannot borrow money for the purpose from the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland.

Not many applications have yet been received by the Corporation for such loams, but provision has been made to deal with them, and they are more likely to be sought when the extent to which the ex gratia grants will cover the cost of rebuilding can be better judged than at present.
